DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on June 13, 2003 was filed before the mailing date of the Non-Final Office Action on June 17, 2003. The submission is in compliance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.97. Accordingly, the information disclosure statement is being considered by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-3 and 5-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by EP 1022 450 A2 to Woon et al.

Woon et al. clearly teaches the construction of an electric power generation system and a method of generating electric power having a multi-cylinder internal combustion engine, a mechanical or hydraulic clutch coupling to the generator and a control device which:

selectively disconnects/reconnects one or more cylinders during operation according to at least one control signal;

determines the number of cylinders to be disconnected according to the amplitude or the chronology of the load change;

electrically or mechanically measures the load change at the generator and triggers a control signal for the cylinder disconnection;

prevents explosions upon cylinder disconnection; determines both, the number of cylinders to be disconnected according to the amplitude or the chronology of the load change, and the chronology of the disconnection according to the amplitude and/or the chronology of the load change; and characterized in that:

the control signal, measured at the generator or at the internal combustion engine for cylinder disconnection/reconnection, depends on the load at the generator;

cylinder disconnection takes place at at least one cylinder by disconnecting the respective firing mechanism; and the reconnection of the disconnected cylinders after a certain period of time has elapsed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over EP 1022 450 A2 to Woon et al. in view of U.S. Patent No. 4,310,770 to Keener et al.

Woon et al. disclose the construction of an electric power generation system as described above.

However, it fails to disclose a generator switch for coupling and uncoupling the generator respectively to and from at least one consumer.

Keener et al. teach the construction of a demand load control having relay switches (18-25) for the purpose of coupling and uncoupling the generator respectively to and from at least one load on a predetermined priority.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to use the demand load control disclosed by Keener et al., which are capable of generating signals for the cylinder disconnection of the fuel conservation system for multi-cylinder internal combustion gas engines, on the electric power generation system disclosed by Woon et al. for the purpose of coupling and uncoupling the generator respectively to and from at least one load on a predetermined priority.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sec PTO-892.
